To: The Honourable Irwin Cotler, Chair

We appreciate that you are working on the matter of life-prolonging treatments for Canada’s citizens. The Canadian Medical Association (CMA) has concerns about the proposed legislation. Life-prolonging treatments, especially in the context of palliative care, are important to address the quality and quantity of life for Canadians. However, we also have concerns about the potential for abuse of these treatments and the implications for medical ethics.

The CMA has a long history of advocating for ethical medical practice. We believe that any legislation should reflect these principles. We are concerned about the potential for abuse of these treatments, particularly in the context of assisted dying. We believe that any legislation should be carefully crafted to ensure that all Canadians are protected and that the principles of medical ethics are respected.

EQUITY AND DIVERSITY IN MEDICINE

A PATHWAY

The purpose of this policy is to support and promote equity in health outcomes for all Canadians, to prevent health inequities, and to ensure that those who seek health care services have equal access to the best available evidence and treatment. This policy aims to address the social determinants of health, including structural racism, to promote health equity, and to work towards eliminating health inequities.

BACKGROUND TO CMA POLICY

PATHWAYS TO EQUITY

- Traditional treatments
- New treatments
- Health care providers
- Health care consumers
- Health care facilities
- Health care systems

CMA STATEMENT ON EQUITY AND DIVERSITY IN MEDICINE

What Is

On the part of all individuals, the Health Canada and the Canadian Medical Association have a responsibility to promote and support the implementation of a national strategy to address health inequities.

Why This Matters

- It promotes health equity
- It reduces health inequities
- It improves health outcomes

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

- Respect for principles
- Promote health equity
- Ensure access to care
- Foster a culture of equity
- Address health inequities
- Support health equity

This document is supported by the Canadian Medical Association and is intended to provide guidance to members of the health care professions.

CMA POLICY

The Evolving Professional Relationship between Canadian Physicians and our Health Care System: What do we stand?

The state of the current professional relationship between physicians and the health care system is a critical issue facing the health care community. The evolving landscape of Canadian health care is characterized by a complex and dynamic environment that presents both opportunities and challenges for physicians. This policy document aims to address the core issues and developments that have shaped the current state of the relationship and to provide guidance for future actions.

The evolving professional relationship between physicians and the health care system is a critical issue facing the health care community. The evolving landscape of Canadian health care is characterized by a complex and dynamic environment that presents both opportunities and challenges for physicians. This policy document aims to address the core issues and developments that have shaped the current state of the relationship and to provide guidance for future actions.

The Canadian Medical Association (CMA) recognizes that the evolving relationship between physicians and the health care system is complex and multifaceted. This policy document aims to provide guidance for future actions.

The CMA is committed to ensuring that Canadian physicians continue to provide high-quality care to patients while maintaining the integrity of the profession. This policy document aims to provide guidance for future actions.
