ACTIVE TRANSPORTATION

Policy document

This policy recommends active transportation as a means to improve health and quality of life. It encourages policies that support active transportation, such as cycling, walking, and public transit, to promote physical activity, reduce the risk of chronic diseases, and improve public health outcomes. It also highlights the importance of creating safe and accessible environments for active transportation, including bike lanes, sidewalks, and pedestrian-friendly areas.

Answering the Wake-up Call: CMA’s Public Health Action Plan

Submission to the National Advisory Committee on SARS and Public Health
June 2003

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY
The public health emergency in Canada and around the world requires the highest level of attention and action from communities and individuals. In the wake of the SARS crisis, the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) has undertaken a comprehensive review of Canada’s public health system. This review, which was led by a three-member task force, provides a comprehensive analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of the system. The CMA’s Public Health Action Plan (2003) outlines the key areas for improvement.

The CMA’s Public Health Action Plan is based on the following principles:

1. Public health is a shared responsibility
2. Public health is a human rights issue
3. Public health is a sustainable development issue

The plan includes recommendations to enhance the effectiveness and efficiency of the public health system, including:

- Strengthening public health surveillance and communication systems
- Enhancing the capacity of local public health authorities
- Improving the integration of public health and health care services
- Increasing public awareness and education on health issues
- Developing partnerships with other sectors

The CMA’s Public Health Action Plan is a comprehensive and strategic approach to improving public health in Canada. It is designed to address the challenges and opportunities that arise from the SARS crisis and to ensure that Canada’s public health system is prepared for future emergencies.
