CMA Statement on Racism

The Canadian Medical Association (CMA) is concerned about the impact of racism and racial inequalities on health. Racism is a form of discrimination that is often invisible and can be difficult to identify. It can manifest in various ways, including systemic barriers and individual biases.

The CMA supports the development of policies and practices that promote equity, diversity, and inclusion. This includes addressing the structural and systemic factors that contribute to health disparities and racial inequities.

The CMA recommends that health care providers receive training in cultural competency and anti-racism education to better understand the impact of racism on health outcomes.
