REPLACES  Physician resource planning (Update 2003)
TOPICS  Health human resources

The purpose of the policy is to describe the key elements required for good physician resource planning, and to recommend a consistent approach for the delivery of optimal services to the population of Canada. Physician resource planning is accomplished by a process whereby a comprehensive assessment of the health care needs of a defined population is completed. The assessment is used to determine the health human resource requirements needed to meet the needs of the population. This process requires health care providers of all disciplines to work together in a coordinated and collegial manner.

Introduction

The purpose of the policy is to describe the key elements required for good physician resource planning, and to recommend a consistent approach for the delivery of optimal services to the population of Canada. Physician resource planning is accomplished by a process whereby a comprehensive assessment of the health care needs of a defined population is completed. The assessment is used to determine the health human resource requirements needed to meet the needs of the population. This process requires health care providers of all disciplines to work together in a coordinated and collegial manner.

1. Health care needs assessment requires a population-based approach that focuses on the needs of the population.
2. Health care services are delivered by a multidisciplinary team.
3. Health care needs are met through a coordinated and integrated approach that involves all health care providers.
4. Health care services are delivered in a timely and efficient manner.

This policy provides a framework for the development of physician resource planning and delivery of optimal services to the population of Canada.
