The purpose of the policy statement is to describe the role of physicians in providing care to patients in Ontario.

There are many reasons why physicians are important in providing care to patients in Ontario. In addition to their role in providing care to patients, physicians also play a key role in shaping the delivery of health care services in the province.

Physicians are the primary care providers for most Ontarians and are essential to the delivery of primary care services. They are also important in the provision of specialty care and are often the first point of contact for patients when they need to see a specialist.

Physicians are also important in the development and implementation of health care policies. They are involved in the development of new programs and policies, as well as the evaluation of existing programs and policies.

Physicians are also involved in the provision of care to patients. They are often the first point of contact for patients when they need to see a specialist or when they need to receive care for a medical condition.

Physicians are also important in the provision of care to patients. They are often the first point of contact for patients when they need to receive care for a medical condition.